Fall is here, and it's time to break out heavier timberland uomo saldi footwear as we meander toward winter. Ditching your sandals may be good riddance or a bitter defeat for you, but Insider Picks is here to help you find your fall footwear whether you're going for trendy avant-gardes, timeless classics, or something in between.

First, let's consider where these boots will be walking. Cobbled streets laden with mysterious mud, sludge, and slime?

Go for rubber or PVC and timberland outlet online italia leave those leather soles alone ; you'll only trash them. The office for a big board meeting? Revisit said leather soles ; you might not want to rock up in Doc Martens looking like you just stumbled out of the darkest, dingiest bar in the dirtiest, oldest part of town.

You'll also want to keep the temperature timberland saldi shop and weather in mind. Is fall a wet proposition where you live? If so, think about avoiding suede which will, more likely than not, end up looking pretty raggedy come December. A full-grain leather with a waterproofing solution or balm like ScotchGuard or one of Dr. Martens' signature shoe polishes is always a good idea.

After fashion comes function and timberland donne outlet comfort, of course. A lace-free Chelsea boot might be the most accommodating boot of all fall options and you can pull them off in just about any setting. But then, maybe you don't like that distracting patch of synthetic nylon breaking up the beautiful, shiny, natural leather for which you've paid such a premium. In that case, maybe a zippered boot with a harness or a full lace-up is your best bet.
